Saving The Great Swamp* Documentary Debuts on National Public Television

New Jersey, October 29, 2017 - The new one-hour documentary, Saving The Great Swamp: Battle to Defeat the Jetport, will premiere on public television nationwide this November. Narrated by Blythe Danner, the award-winning film chronicles the historic struggle to preserve a rural area of New Jersey between 1959 and 1968. The inspiring story continues to resonate as a model for community action in the face of powerful forces.

Distributed nationally by APT (American Public Television), NJTV leads with the first primetime broadcast in the Northeast on November 15th at 8:00 pm. Presenting station WHYY in Philadelphia airs on the same night at 10:00 pm, and the film is scheduled on over 100 channels across the country throughout November. Among other accolades, the film won Best Documentary at the Fall 2017 New Jersey Film Festival.

Saving The Great Swamp centers on the fight that began when the powerful Port of New York Authority announced plans to construct a huge 10,000 acre "jetport" 26 miles west of New York City in a little-known place called the Great Swamp. In the name of progress, entire towns would be obliterated, the aquifer and wildlife destroyed, and a way-of-life threatened for thousands of people. The events that followed became one of the most defining environmental confrontations of its time - a grassroots movement that started in a local high school and grew to historic proportions. It was a battle that took almost a decade, a President and an Act of Congress to stop, and led to the creation of a national treasure - Great Swamp National Wildlife Refuge.

Two years in the making, Saving The Great Swamp: Battle to Defeat the Jetport was directed by seasoned filmmaker Scott Morris and co-produced by Larry Fast. The film features in-depth interviews with residents, historians and officials, and a rich tapestry of historic film footage, old photographs and high-end cinematography of the Great Swamp today. Funding was provided by philanthropic organizations and individuals through Community Foundation of New Jersey.
